

Jo Hussey

HOLLYWOOD

Having taken a role at the Job Centre she spotted an advert for a PA at a local holiday company supporting the owner. During her time here she even rented properties to celebrities!

1980-1982
First PA role

Jo did a number of different roles in the branches at Nationwide before becoming a Financial Consultant with responsibility for coaching her colleagues.

1984-1991

The launch of Nationwide's key values in 2002, known as PRIDE, was a key marker in Jo's career history. In 2004 she was offered the chance to manage the PRIDE programme across the whole business. Jo later joined the employee resourcing team taking PRIDE externally to potential new employees through the recruitment advertising strategy.

2004-2010
PRIDE

Jo didn't quite get the grades to pursue her chosen career as an accountant, so she went to college to study to become a Personal Assistant (PA).

Education

Jo then took an admin role at her Local Council office before relocating to Milton Keynes to work as a cashier at a branch of Nationwide Building Society.

1982-1984

Moving into Human Resources (HR) at Nationwide as a Retail Training Advisor, Jo helped to train and develop people for roles she had previously worked in, which was a dream opportunity for her.

1991-2000

Jo moved up the ranks to become a Learning and Development Consultant allowing her to develop her management and project skills.

2000-2004

Jo currently manages the whole employee experience (from thinking about working at Nationwide to being part of the team) as an Employer Brand and Engagement Manager. She attributes her career success to her positive attitude and belief in making a real commercial difference.

Today